Steven Landsberg began studying Tibetan Buddhism in 1967 while he was living in India. He also spent two years studying Sanskrit and Tibetan and many years doing preliminary practices.

In 1982, he attended his first retreat with Chogyal Namkhai

Norbu Rinpoche and began practicing under his guidance. After having studied and practiced the Base Level of the Santi Maha Sangha he passed the exam in 1996 and since then continued to pursue his study and practice of SMS. In 2010 he participated in the Teachers Training and was authorized to teach. For the last eight years, he has been giving courses throughout Europe and the Americas on Santi Maha Sangha and mindful presence.

Chöd is extraordinary teaching that embraces and unifies the essence of the Sutra teachings of the Prajñaparamita, of the Mahamudra Upadeshas of Secret Mantra, and of the fundamental principle of the supreme Dzogchen teachings.

Many great Ati teachers of the past, and in particular the teacher of my two root teachers Changchub Dorje and Ayu Khandro, the Vidyadhara Nyagla Padma Dündul and his disciples, and the Siddha Ugyen Tendzin who realized the rainbow body and so forth, adopted Chöd as the fundamental point of the aspect of the behavior of Dzogpa Chenpo. Thus it is really important also for practitioners of Santi Maha Sangha to integrate perfectly this practice in the base of the teaching.
